

10 Best Pitch Deck Design Agencies in 2024

TL;DR 🕒

You've hustled to land a meeting with potential investors—big win! But here's the challenge: now you've got minutes (maybe even seconds) to make an impression. The right pitch deck can make all the difference. Carefully researched pitch decks not only look polished but also communicate your vision in a way that grabs attention and holds it.

If design isn't your thing or you're just short on time, no worries. That's where pitch deck design agencies step in. We've done the homework and lined up the 10 best agencies for 2024 to help you crush your next pitch.

Why You Need a Pro for Your Pitch Deck

You've got about 2 minutes and 42 seconds—that's how long the average investor spends looking at a pitch deck. Let's be real—pitching to investors is nerve-wracking. You've got a limited window to get them excited about your idea, and guess what? They're busy. According to DocSend,

This is why hiring a professional pitch deck designer matters. A pro can help make sure those few minutes count, turning heads and holding attention. Here's why going with an agency can take your deck to the next level:

Nail the First Impression

Think of your pitch deck as your opening handshake—it needs to be strong, confident, and leave people wanting more. In just 7 seconds, investors will decide if they're going to keep watching. Designers use layout tricks like bold visuals and smooth typography to keep their eyes on the screen—and on you.

Tell a Story, Not Just Stats

Investors have seen enough charts to last a lifetime. What makes your pitch stand out is how you tell your story. People remember stories, not just numbers. Designers weave in narratives through visuals—using icons, graphs, and well-placed imagery—that help make your message clear and memorable.

They Know Your Industry

If you're in healthcare, tech, or any other specialized field, wouldn't it be great if your designer understood your space? That's the magic of working with an agency that gets your industry. They tailor your deck not just to look good but to resonate with the people you're pitching to.

Keep It on Brand

A good pitch deck doesn't just talk about your business—it feels like your business. A great design agency ensures your branding (colors, fonts, and overall vibe) is reflected in every slide, so everything feels cohesive and professional.

Make Complex Data Simple

Let's face it: investors don't have the time (or patience) to sift through complicated slides. A designer can take that overwhelming pile of numbers and turn it into clear, bite-sized visuals that investors can digest in seconds. This isn't just about looking good—it's about making sure your data works for you.

Smooth User Experience

A pretty deck is great, but if it's a pain to navigate, it won't do you any favors. A designer ensures that your slides flow logically and feel easy to follow, making sure your key points land exactly where they need to.

Polish Matters

Investors have a lot of options, and a sleek, professional deck can set you apart. It's about attention to detail: from the choice of fonts to the color balance to the way your slides transition. It shows you're serious, and that kind of polish can be a game-changer.

Picking the Right Pitch Deck Design Agency

Finding the right partner to help with your pitch deck is a big decision. When evaluating pitch deck creation services, here's what to look for when you're deciding which agency to go with:

1. Check Their Portfolio: Look at the work they've done. Does it look good? Does it feel right for your brand? More importantly, have they helped other companies like yours?
2. Industry Know-How: Ideally, the agency has experience in your field. If they don't, make sure they're eager to dive in and learn the ropes.
3. Are They a Good Fit for You? You want an agency that listens to what you need and works with you, not just for you.
4. Communication is Key: If you're chasing them for updates, that's a red flag. Make sure they're quick to respond and open to feedback.

5. Deadlines: Can they deliver on time, especially when investor meetings are looming? Timing is everything.
6. Quality Over Cost: Sure, budget matters, but don't sacrifice quality. A great deck can lead to funding, and that's priceless.

The Pitch Deck Design Process

The pitch deck design process involves several stages, including:

1. Discovery: Understanding the business, its goals, and target audience.
2. Content Creation: Developing a clear and concise narrative, including key messages, market analysis, and financial projections.
3. Design: Creating visually appealing and engaging slides that effectively communicate the business story.
4. Review and Revision: Refining the pitch deck based on feedback and iteration.
5. Finalization: Delivering a polished and professional pitch deck that is ready for presentation.

A successful pitch deck design process requires a deep understanding of the business, its goals, and its target audience. It also demands a combination of creative and technical skills, including writing, design, and storytelling. By following a structured design process, businesses can create a pitch deck that effectively communicates their value proposition and helps them achieve their fundraising goals.

Pitch Deck Frequently Asked Questions

What is a pitch deck?

A pitch deck is your business's first impression in front of investors or partners. Think of it as a visual storytelling tool that sums up your idea, product, or service in a clear, concise way. It's not just about the slides; it's about conveying your story and getting people excited about what you're building.

What's included in a pitch deck?

A well-designed pitch deck usually hits all the key points investors need to see—without overloading them with too much detail. Here's what to cover:

- Introduction: A quick intro to who you are and what your company does.
- Problem: What's the big issue your product or service is solving?
- Solution: How do you plan to solve that problem better than anyone else?
- Market Opportunity: Is there room for growth? How big is the market you're targeting?
- Business Model: How do you make money? Simple as that.
- Traction: Show your progress—whether it's user growth, revenue, or early wins.
- Competition: Who else is in the game, and why are you better?
- Team: Investors bet on people as much as they do on ideas. Highlight the experience and skills of your team.
- Financials: Share a forecast of how you expect your numbers to grow.

- Funding Ask: Let investors know how much you're raising and what you plan to do with it.
- Call to Action: End with a clear next step—whether that's inviting questions or asking for a follow-up meeting.

It's not just about checking these boxes—your pitch deck needs to tell a story that gets investors excited and makes them want to learn more.

Should I create my own pitch deck or outsource it?

Let's be honest: designing a pitch deck isn't just about putting words on slides. It's about grabbing attention and keeping it. If you've got serious design and storytelling skills, go for it. But if not, it's worth handing it off to a pro. A good pitch deck can help you close deals, so it's worth the investment if design isn't your strong suit.

If you're strapped for time or design talent, outsourcing your deck to experienced designers ensures you'll get something polished and engaging.

Are there other options besides hiring an agency?

Not everyone has the budget to work with a full-service design agency, and that's okay. You've got plenty of options if you're looking for something a bit more budget-friendly:

- Fiverr: This is a marketplace for freelancers, where you can find designers at all price points. Just make sure to check their portfolio before committing.

- Upwork: Another freelancer platform where you can hire designers to create your pitch deck. You'll find a range of experience and price options here.
- Toptal: A higher-end option that connects you with top-tier freelance talent. If quality is your top concern, Toptal is known for offering only the best.
- DesignCrowd: A crowdsourcing option where you can post your project and receive multiple design proposals to choose from.
- Envato Elements: If you're comfortable working with templates, this platform gives you access to beautifully designed pitch deck templates for a fraction of the cost.

These options work if you need something fast and affordable, but for a deck that really stands out, working with an expert designer can make all the difference.

How much does it cost to design a pitch deck?

Costs can vary, depending on how complex your deck needs to be and who you hire. On average, you're looking at anywhere between $500 and $5,000 for a professionally designed pitch deck.

What affects the price?

- Complexity: More detailed designs with custom graphics and animations will naturally cost more.
- Experience: A designer with a proven track record might charge more, but the results can be well worth it.

- Timeline: Need it fast? That could bump up the price too.

For a more budget-friendly option, using pre-made templates can keep costs down, but investing in a professionally designed deck is usually worth it when you're aiming to impress.
